Historical Note

The American Civil Liberties Union was formed in January 1920 largely through the efforts of Roger Baldwin. Baldwin moved to St. Louis from Boston in the fall of 1906 to be the first director of Self Culture Hall, a neighborhood settlement house founded by the Ethical Culture Society. In addition to this position, Baldwin gave the first course in sociology at Washington University. Along with his involvement in urban reform; he served as secretary of the St. Louis Civic League, an organization of urban progressives, Baldwin counseled pacifism at the outbreak of the First World War in Europe. "When I read of the British conscientious objectors in the war", he recalled, "I knew I was one of them." In 1916 he joined the St. Louis affiliate of the American Union Against Militarism (AUAM) and in the spring of 1917 Baldwin resigned his position with the Civic League and moved to New York in order to donate his services to the AUAM national directing committee.

In May, 1917 Baldwin organized the Bureau for Conscientious Objectors as a sub-agency of the AUAM to advise objectors about legal technicalities and in other ways provide legal or economic assistance. Due to ideological differences, Baldwin's organization broke away from the AUAM and became the National Civil Liberties Bureau (NCLB) an independent association, in 1917. In the fall of 1918, just as the war was about to end, Baldwin went to prison for eight months for violating the draft law. Following his release from prison in late 1919, Baldwin began a reorganization of the NCLB. Taking a broader scope than before, he sought to serve those directly involved in the labor struggle and those who stood on general principles for freedom of expression. Baldwin's efforts resulted in the organization of the American Civil Liberties Union in January, 1920.

It appears that the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee (StLCLC) was formed in that same year by a small group of St. Louisans as a permanent non-profit, non-partisan organization devoted to defending the liberties guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. The StLCLC's 1936 constitution lists its purposes as: the furtherance of the cause of freedom of speech, writing, publication, assembly and thought by all legitimate means; the protection of the legal rights of individuals in respect to such instances as may be deemed worthy; the promotion or opposition of legislation and other official action bearing upon civil liberties; and cooperation to the fullest extent possible with the American Civil Liberties Union in such of its activities as meet with the approval of the StLCLC.

The StLCLC changed its name to the American Civil Liberties Union of Eastern Missouri (ACLU/EM) in 1968. In 1971 the position of Executive Director was created to head up the workings of the ACLU/EM. The Board of Trustees conducts the affairs of the affiliate, and officers of the affiliate consist of a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

ACLU/EM has four standing committees; the legal panel, the membership committee, the program committee, and the tribute fund. The President is responsible for appointing chairmen and members of these committees. The Board may, when appropriate, create ad hoc committees and the President appoints chairmen and members as authorized by the Board.

Scope and Content Notes

There are seven subgroups to the collection, each one corresponding to an accession of ACLU/EM Records. Significant overlap in topics and dates is found in each sub-group.

Subgroup 01: St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee, 1935 – 1967

Series 01: Includes years from 1941 to 1967, but the bulk of the material deals with the years 1953-1959. This first series (six boxes) is comprised of the St. Louis office files of the St. Louis Civil Liberties Committee: minutes of meetings; correspondence relating to membership, civil liberties issues and problems; budget and promotional material; memos and reports from the American Civil Liberties Union (New York Office); various pamphlets, reports, brochures, articles relating to Civil Liberties, some published by SLCLC, some by the national office, the rest by other institutions.

Series 02: (Four boxes), spans the years 1947-1957, but most of the material is concentrated in the years 1948-1955. Much of the same type of files which comprise Series One are contained in Series Two, but in this second series there are more files of cases which the SLCLC supported.

Series 03: (Two boxes), is the General Files of the Chairman, 1960-1961 (circa), and 1963-1965.

Series 04: (One box), contains miscellaneous material.

Subgroup 02: ACLU of Eastern Missouri Files, 1953 – 1981

Series 01: (Four boxes), spans the years 1953-1980, is comprised of the office files of the ACLU/EM: minutes of meetings, general correspondence, both incoming and outgoing; miscellaneous material regarding the history of the ACLU/EM, budgets and financial statements; memos and correspondence from national, 1961-1968; materials relating to Biennial Conferences (1964, '66, '68).

Series 02: (One box), contains the Executive Director files: planning and appointment calendars; Executive Directors Council memos and correspondence, (1971-1981).

Series 03: (Two boxes) ACLU/EM Privacy Project, 1976, files include: history of the project, funding correspondence, news clippings, radio and television spots, Privacy Handbook, and final report.

Series 04: (Five boxes), files consist primarily of news clippings on a very broad range of legal and social issues, including desegregation, church/state matters, a study of the Eighth Circuit Court, reproductive freedom and women's rights. Covers the period 1967-1985.

Series 05 : (One box), consists of membership and recruitment files, 1967-1980, including recruitment letters, correspondence, and membership information.

Series 06: (Two boxes), Publications and pamphlets on numerous issues printed by both ACLU and other organizations; includes ACLU annual reports 1954-1966, and 1970-71, "The Privacy Report", newsletter issued by ACLU; "The Working Parts", In-house newsletter published by ACLU (1973-1977).

SWW re case; correspondence with New York office re their filing a joint brief for the Shelley and another restrictive covenant case (from Michigan) -- SLCLC filed their own brief anyway; correspondence from others re SLCLC brief; League of Women Voters of Missouri publication, "Housing: Background for Study, May 1962."

Folder #2: Includes "People vs Property: Race Restrictive Covenants in Housing." by Herman H. Long and Charles S. Johnson, 1947; statement, brief and argument for respondents, 1946; printed brief of Amicus Curiae of SLCLC.

Folder #3: Includes transcript of record from Circuit Court Extracts from Respondents' Points and Authorities, Submission, Opinion, and Judgement in Supreme Court, and other court decisions and proceedings.
BACKGROUND INFORMATION: Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Shelley, St. Louis Negroes, purchased a home at 4600 Labadie Avenue in 1945. Other property owners on Labadie Avenue sued to prohibit the Shellays from entering the area. The basis of their suit was a restrictive covenant, agreed to by the property owners in 1911, to bar Negroes for fifty years. The Supreme Court's decision stated that neither state nor federal courts can be used to guarantee agreements that would bar persons from residence in certain areas because of color. The ruling does not say that restrictive covenants are unconstitutional. It does not say that a citizen may break up such an agreement by appealing to courts. What it does say is that if a citizen is sold property in such an area, the other holders of property cannot keep the newcomer out by court injunction.

Lechner vs Brown

Lechner (State ex rel) vs. Brown et al, 1948. Lechner filed nomination for office of State Representative on the non-partisan ticket but had his nomination returned by the Board of Election Commissioners because (they said) he failed to comply with the provisions of the election laws of Missouri pertaining to such filing.

Includes bulletins; memos; statements of ACLU; ACLU statements on selective service, anti-communist bill (April 1948); copy of Union's proposals for a code of procedure for legislative investigating committees; Model State Civil Rights Bill proposed by ACLU; statements on Presidential order of a loyalty test for federal employment by ACLU New York branch and by opposing branches (February 1948); position of ACLU on whether radio station owners should be permitted to editorialize (Position of ACLU on Mayflower decision of the Federal Communications Commission, 1940); Majority and Minority Reports on Policy re Enforced Disclosure by Groups Influencing Public Opinion, January 1948; ACLU legal memorandum on the subversive activities control bill (May 1948) which ACLU opposes.

Folder #3: Miscellaneous publications. Includes brochures, mimeographed letters re displaced persons; general civil liberties publications.
BACKGROUND INFORMATION: The President's Commission on Civil Rights proposed federal and state legislation "requiring all groups which attempt to influence public opinion to disclose pertinent facts about themselves through systematic registration procedures." ACLU's position on disclosure was not consistent in the past. Majority Position: only those organizations engaged in substantial distribution or to which substantial contributions are made should be forced to disclose. Minority Position: opposed to Majority position; feels that proposed legislation would curb free speech.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION-. The Smith Act of 1940 makes it unlawful to conspire to advocate a bringing about of forceful or violent overthrow of the government, and to organize a group so to teach. The Act is the chief federal sedition law. ACLU has opposed this law. The Yates case (June 1957) decision stated that the belief in the forcible overthrow of the government, when divorced from an actual effort to overthrow, is not a violation of the Smith Act. It is on this basis that Sentner appealed; he did not participate in any conspiracy to overthrow the U.S. government.

Gill v. Columbia 93 School District, No. 99-3807

Summary: The case involves Matthew Gill, a young boy with autism whose parents are challenging the educational plan developed for their son by the Columbia School District. The parents [Alan and Deborah Gill] believe their son should be in a program that has special benefits for students with autism. They challenged the district's plan, but at the hearing, they were not allowed to present expert witnesses to testify about the appropriateness of the District's plan or the Gill's proposed plan. The district contends that the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, while requiring the district to accommodate the child's disability, does not require them to maximize the students' potential, and thus, they need not consider the special program. However, the state of Missouri has adopted a higher standard than that set forth in the IDEA, providing that public schools must provide special education services to maximize the capabilities of disabled students.

Henerey v. St. Charles School District (ACLU #485), No. 98-3439

Attorneys: Dayna F. Deck and Rebecca S. Stith

Judge: The Honorable Charles A. Shaw.

Summary: Appellant Adam Henerey ran for junior class president in April 1997 at St. Charles High School. His theme was "Vote for Adam Henerey: The Safe Choice," because his platform was about safe sex education for high school students. He distributed condoms to a few students and only to those that specifically asked. He won the election but officials who discovered he distributed condoms as part of his campaign refused him the position. Adam filed suit that his first amendment rights had been violated.

McLin v. St. Louis Police Department, beginning 1998

Cooperating Attorney: Scott Levine, Leland Ware

Summary: Client - Dennis McLin; St. Louis Police Officer Dennis McLin was suspended after remarks he made at a community forum on police brutality were published in a local newspaper. Though off-duty and not in uniform at the time, he was quoted as saying that abuse and racism are rampant in the police force, and that many police officers are “sissies” from small towns that lack racial sensitivity. He was suspended without pay for making remarks that could discredit the department. We represented McLin in his appeal April 10, 1998 before a Summary Board of the St. Louis Board of Police Commissioners, after which the Summary Board upheld and increased McLin’s suspension. The Board of Police Commissioners ratified the summary board’s decision, and in December 1998, McLin was placed on probationary status for his infractions. We filed a lawsuit in US District Court on March 29, 1999, challenging the suspension on the grounds that the department punished McLin for exercising his right to free speech, and challenging the constitutionality of the Police Department’s discipline policy

Oliver v. State Tax Commission, Case No. SC82412

Attorneys for Respondents: [Attorney General] Nixon, Jeremiah W.;

[Assistant Attorneys General] Gardner, Gary L. and Pham, Huyen T.

Summary: Case involves a challenge under the Missouri and US

Constitutions, which provides that residents of second, third and fourth class counties sign a personal property tax with the words "So Help Me God." The statute provides that any person who refuses to make the oath is guilty of a misdemeanor. A separate statute governs first class counties, and simply allows residents in those counties to "certify" that the personal property listing is accurate. The plaintiff is an atheist who resides in a third-class county and refused to sign the oath. The Circuit Court of Cole County found that the oath did not violate the Establishment Clause. The case is being appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, and Oliver's attorney, Gail

Wechsler, with Can Amburg, Chackes, Carlson & Spritzer, has requested that the ACLU file an amicus brief on one or all of the constitutional issues.

Sage, Linda, Case No. A18 498 882

Summary: Case has to do with the Immigration and Naturalization Act. To acquire citizenship, an applicant is required to take an oath that they will, among other things, “bear arms on behalf of the United States when required by the law” unless they can justify a conscientious objection based on religious training and belief.” In an oral and written reply, Sage said she would not bear arms, and was denied the application because she did not provide evidence of a “religious basis for her refusal to bear arms.”

U.S. v. Nenninger (2003) Case No-03-1350

Summary: Concerns free assembly. Tony Nenninger was a member of The Rainbow Family, a group that celebrates counter-culture. The Rainbow Family organized an event on National Forest System Land without acquiring a required special use permit for non-commercial events of more than 75 people. Nenninger was convicted and appealed saying that the permit requirement violated his right to free assembly. The U.S. 8 circuit held that the special use permit was constitutional because it was content neutral.

Susman & ACLU/EM, Appellees v. State of Missouri & William L. Webster, Appellants

Case # 91-4429-CV-C-5

Summary: Case filed by ACLU in regards to the lack of a definitive decision on the splitting of attorney's fees between a volunteer attorney and the ACLU. A previous case in the Missouri Supreme Court found that it was a violation of section 484.150.1 RSMO 1986 to split attorney's fees. However, subsequent federal action brought by the ACLU was granted in favor in the ACLU.
