Historical Note

In 1859 and 1860 “Closing Exercises” were held at year’s end for the first class of Washington University students. The first graduation ceremony was the class of 1862, and graduation customs and locations have changed numerous times since that time.

Early 20th century traditions of graduation included: planting a class tree, reading a class history and poem, and a “Senior Pilgrimage” during commencement week. In this event Seniors, wearing cap and gown, followed by underclassman, visited each major building on campus to give a tribute and remembrance. (For further details, consult the Washington University Record Vol. 5, No. 2, February 1910.) From 1904 until 1914 graduation ceremonies were held in a large tent on the quadrangle. In 1915 the ceremonies move into the gymnasium.

Scope and Content Notes

The collection includes Washington University commencement programs from 1856 to present.

Folders are organized by year, in chronological order. Material types are listed, followed by the date of the event(s). Commencement programs and other items refer to University-wide events, unless otherwise noted as a specific school or department. Materials vary in the level of information for each year.

Early commencement programs do not include a list of graduates or honorees. For graduates name’s between 1862 – 1917 consult the Washington University General Alumni Catalogue, published in 1917. Years without graduates names are noted as: [no graduate list].

For some years in the 20th century, supplemental information from the student newspaper, Student Life, has also been included.
