Biographical Note

Dietrich Moritz Fritz Gerhard (b. Berlin, Germany November 7, 1896; d. Konstanz, Germany July 31, 1985) was both a specialist and prolific writer of the social and institutional histories of Western Europe, Russia, the British Empire, and the United States of America.

Gerhard is best known for his life-long research and early co-authored publication (with William Norvin) of the letters of Berthold Georg Niebuhrs (b. Copenhagen, Denmark August 27, 1776; d. Bonn, Germany January 31, 1831).

An expert on Roman antiquity, Niebuhr is considered to be the first European historian to devote his methodology to "taetige Skepsis" (or, 'Constructive Skeptism') in which only proven historic details are studied devoid of all mythical conjecture.

Gerhard and Norvin's collaborative work entitled, Die Brief Berthold George Neibuhrs, (Volumes 1 and 2, 1926-29) was seen by contemporary scholars as novel in its comparative view of Niebuhr's research methodology and the beginnings of modern historiography.
